BALLADE OF WAR AND PEACE.

THE war-clouds glower, the war-clouds fly,
The broken columns dash to and fro—
The eagles of battle shriek on high
And the green mead's dyed to a gory glow.
In the fields of peace where the wheat weaves flow
'Neath quiet skies in a madcap sea,
Oh! the lilies dream and the lilies blow,
And the white dove coos in the white rose tree.

The trumpets blare and the banners vie—
The smoke of the fight floats high and low:
All groaning and moaning the fallen lie,
And over the mountain drifts the crow,
On the Northern porch where the woodbines grow
The baby croons on its mother's knee
The toy soldiers smile in a crooked row,
And the white dove coos in the white rose tree.

The breezes over the new graves sigh,
Where there wasn't a grave a day ago,
And a dirge ascends to the leaden sky—
A sky that is fraught with the gloom of woe;
But the sky smiles sweet where the still hours know
That the brook blossom bends to the booming bee.
Oh! the mowers sing as they blithely mow,
And the white dove coos in the white rose tree.

ENVOI.

While the soldier dashes to strike the foe,
Though he fall while praying for victory,
The plow down the furrowed field moves slow,
And the white dove coos in the white rose tree.
—R. K. Munkittrick in Collier's Weekly.

Odds and Ends of Gossip.

JUST IN TIME—Washington county's representatives in the great army of volunteers which was called out to whip Spain, probably won't see any fighting, but they will see a little of the world, anyway. The First Kentucky Regiment, to which Company K, containing the Washington county boys belongs, sailed for Porto Rico a short time before peace was declared, and will be given a nice journey across the waters and be detailed to garrison duty on the island for sometime. Porto Rico is described as an interesting country to visit, and the boys will no doubt enjoy many new and strange sights and experiences. They were fortunate, by the way, in enlisting with the First Regiment, as that is the only one of the Kentucky regiments that will be ordered to the front, the Second containing the Lebanon company, and the Third containing the Bardstown company, having gone no farther than the camping grounds at Chickamauga. There is some probability of the Second Regiment being ordered back to go into camp at Lexington, which place has been selected as a camping place for a large number of troops.

A VETERAN—Our Fenwick correspondent sends in an interesting item about one of our well known citizens. In speaking of the sinking of new wells in the neighborhood, our correspondent says: "The 'Water prophet' has had his opportunity for fame as well as the war hero. That lightning-scarred old veteran Jeptha Wilson, has a record of twenty-seven holes in the ground, graded in depth, and volumn of water. He has but one dry well, while others vary in depth, but all have water. While Jeptha is not the prophet who smote the rock and obtained much water, he is the man whom the Lord smote with lightning from the back of his neck to the heel of his foot about eighteen years ago. The very heels and soles were torn from his shoes, and the buttons burned off his clothing, and the scorched lines can yet be traced across his body. The shoes and clothing were viewed by thousands when on exhibition at the Louisville Exposition in 1881. Jeptha is a veteran, a pensioner, and belongs to a family of water prophets, who can trace their ancestry to that once famous old necremancer Johan Rhyneesrn, who was said to be half Indian and half devil, and held sway like a feudal king in the early days of the present century.

SURPRISED——About the most surprised lot of people it has been my privilege to see for many a day, was the court-room full of attorney's, witnesses, spectators and prisoners on last Saturday, when Judge Litsey gave his decision dismissing the men Homan and Oder, who were arraigned for assaulting and brutally beating a young man by the name of Hood, in the Willisburg neighborhood about two weeks ago. The testimony in the case was listened to with a good deal of interest by a large crowd of spectators, and as the details of the assault were brought out, there were expressions of indignation at the accused and of sympathy for the victim of the assault—who still showed the effects of the beating—heard from many. At the conclusion of the testimony, County Attorney T. Scott Mayes, thinking as he said afterward, that there would be no doubt about the men being held over, declined to argue the case, submitting it on the evidence. Great was the astonishment then, when the Court announced that the prisoners were dismissed. County Attorney Mayes was as completely knocked-out as if he had received a solar plexus blow from Kid McCoy's great left and did not revover in time to call the Court's attention to another case he had on hand. The able attorneys for the defense concealed their astonishment as gracefully and prudently as they could under the circumstances. while the prisoners looked about, askance, as if they were not quite sure but what they were the victims of a joke. So it can be seen that there are other things quite as uncertain as the verdict of a jury, or whom a girl will marry.

PROSPERING—There is at least one class of business or profession that is prospering in this community just now, and that is the medical. It is an unfortunate state of things to chronicle, but it is a fact that the health of the community this summer is not good, and the local doctors are kept on the go the greater part of the time. Typhoid fever, that insidious disease that is so hard to combat, is very prevalent in some parts of the county, and several deaths and a number of serious cases have been reported recently.

FARMER'S LITTLE JOKE—The farmer has become proverbial for his grumbling, but this year he cannot conscientiously indulge in this tendency, the good crop prospects having imbued him more with a spirit of good humor. The condition of crops was the subject of among a group of farmers the other day; when one of them broke in with:

"But I tell you all this rain has about ruined all the little corn in my neighborhood."

"How so?" queried one.

"Why, it's made big corn of it all;" and the laugh was on the one who wanted to know.

The college is under the control of the Masons, and it was through the efforts of Mr. Noe's Masonic friends of this place as well as elsewhere that appointment was secured.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies Deafness is caused by an inflamation of the Eustacian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result and and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone.

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photographic camera is to the eye, and more, for the Graphophone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a Graphophone is to make records of your friends voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one just as she sang it, and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras, or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. About one month ago my child which is fifteen months old had an attack of diarrhoea accompanied by vomiting. I gave it such remedies as are usually given in such cases but as nothing gave relief we sent for a physician and it was under his care for a week. At this time the child had been sick for about ten days and was having twenty-five operations of the bowels every twelve hours, and we were convinced that unless it soon obtained relief it would not live. Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was recommended, and I decided to try it. I soon noticed a change for the better and by its continued use a complete cure was brought about and it is now perfectly well.—C. L. Boggs, Stumptown Gilmer Co., W. Va. The banks of this city effected a full and satisfactory settlement with the county in regard to their taxes at a special meeting of the Fiscal Court of Marion county, which was held here. The sheriff was instructed to accept for the years 1896, 1897 and 1898 50 per cent of the taxes due on the basis of the 1898 assessment to be a full settlement with the banks for all delinquent taxes, penalties, etc., up to the present time. This settlement was satisfactory to the county officials and was willingly accepted by the bankers.

"Elsabeth Hospital," the splendid enterprise of Dr. R. C. McChord, is rapidly nearing completion, and already presents a most imposing appearance. When finished and ready for occupancy, which will be in the fall, it will be, par excellence, the architectural ornament of the town. Moreover, it will be through all the coming years, an enduring monument to the enterprise, zeal and public spirit of Dr. McChord.

The Second Regiment, which includes our boys, have received orders for a seven days practice march. Col. Gaither has not yet decided where he will take the regiment, but he is striving to secure the privilege of a thirty days march, in which event the boys will tramp into Kentucky. They are greatly elated over the prospects, as are their friends at this end of the line.

FENWICK.

From Our Regular Correspondent.

Mrs. Bettie Wheatley of Cecilville, has been for several weeks the watchful and loving nurse in the sick room of her son near Fenwick. Medical skill has done its part, but the sympathy of the public goes out to the untiring mother, whose brave vigils has won so far, a victory no less dear to her than the hero of tented fields, or the vaunted victory of a vanquished fleet.

Dr. Smock, of Litsey, is the regular attending physician on Mrs. John Polin, Sr., and reports her much improved.

Rev. L. B. Ford, pastor of the R. C. church here, gave his congregation a brief but most instructive sermon on the question of faith at the Sunday morning services.

While the Spanish-American Protocol is being discussed and our new territorial acquisitons are being marked out, this part of our good old state is coming to the front with the largest wheat and corn crop in twenty years.

The cutting of the tobacco crop in some localities has begun, and the plants are in fine condition. The absence of the worm this season is vouched for by tobaccoists with very peculiar reasons. The grasshoppers, which were a pest in the earlier months, become a blessing now, in that they destroy the eggs of the fly, hence no worms.

Thomas Wheatley, who has been very sick with typhoid fever at his uncle's, T. J. Nally, is convalescent, and his relatives hope to be able to remove him to his home near Cecilville this week.

Mrs. Maggie Hearst of Louisville is visiting relatives near Fenwick.

Miss Carrie Champion, whose dangerous illness was noted a few weeks since, is better.

Thomas Brown of St. Ivo's was the guest of Father Ford, on Sunday.

Miss Hallie, the little daughter of Thos. J. Nally, is very ill of typhoid fever, but hopes are entertained for her recovery.

Mrs. Henson Scott and Mrs. S. L. Aardesty of Walton's Lick were visiting their old friend, Mrs. Marguerette Polin, who sustained a severe injury last week.

Burgess Pinkston, a pupil of the Polin common school, was a guest of his teacher and friends near here Saturday and Sunday.

The evening services of the Baptist church held at the Fenwick schoolhouse on Sunday was largely attended, and after Sunday school, the pastor of Hillsboro church delivered an interesting sermon.

A telegram on Sunday informed the family of Mr. Matt Nunan of his illness in Louisville.

Prof. Montgomery was home on Saturday, and is of the candid opinion that Walton's Lick is the "Hub of the universe," and that he has the best school of boys and girls in the county.

That Cabbage Bug.

Dr. H. D. Rodman, of Bardstown, has received a letter from the United States Department of Agriculture in reference to the cabbage-destroying bug of which mention was made in the Record. It is called the "Harlequin" or "Calico Bug," from its peculiar markings, and was originally an inhabitant of Mexico and Central America. It made its first appearance in Texas in 1856 and has gradually spread from year to year till now it is found in nearly every state in the Union. Many gardens in Bardstown and other points in the county have suffered from the depredations of this bug, and the cabbage crop will be greatly curtailed in consequence. The best means suggested by the Department at Washington for the destruction of the bug is a strong solution of kerosene oil, to be applied by a hand force pump, but even this is by no means satisfactory, as the solution has to be so strong in order to kill the bugs, that it generally ruins the cabbage.—Nelson Record.

THE WATSON MURDER.

History of a Mysterious Crime Committed Near Here Many Years Ago.

In an article which appeared in the NEWS-LEADER a few issues back the statement appeared that General Shafter's mother was a descendant of Capt William Watson, formerly of this county. In preparing the article the name Watson appeared when it should have been Watts, that being the name of the gentleman referred to. Our attention has been called to the error by Mr. W. F. Booker who received a letter from Capt. William McGill, of Bardstown, who is familiar with the history of both Washington and Nelson counties. In his letter Capt. McGill gives the history of a crime committed by the Watsons which is an interesting bit of reading and which we publish herewith:

BARDSTOWN, KY.
Aug. 11, 1898

MR W. F. BOOKER. Springfield, Ky., Dear Sir: I read in the NEWS-LEADER giving you as the author that Gen Shafter's mother was a former resident of your county. (Washington) being a daughter of one Wm. Watson. To aid you in your recollections and researches of the Watson family, I have concluded to give you a history of that family which I have known since before you were born. There was living in this county (Nelson) in 1821 about 12 miles northeast of Bardstown, old man Watson and his son William. The old man was a powder maker and I believe a gunsmith also. I do not know the given name of the old man.

In 1827 two men were killed in the neighborhood of his house, a Mr Courtney and a Mr. Coffman. Courtney was a double son-in-law of Watson, having married two of his daughters. Watson and he had a falling out about the land, as Courtney by his marriage got two shares of Watson's farm.

Courtney and Coffman had walked over to a sale in the neighborhood, Watson and his son lay in ambush and shot them on their return home. They had nothing against Coffman, but had to kill him to save detection. The neighbors suspicioned the Watsons, and they were arrested and the officers in searching about the house found the piece of cloth that had been cut off to wad their guns, which corresponded exactly in size to the wad found on the ground with the dead bodies. This was the strongest proof left to the jury certain of the old man being the murderer of the two men. He was convicted and hanged in 1828. His son William was kept in jail here some two or three years and finally acquitted. The old man, after being condemned to hang wrote a confession with instructions if Will. was condemned to be hanged it was to be published but if he (Will.) was cleard it was to be destroyed unopened, and as William was cleared it was never made public. William soon after left here and I do not know where he went to. He had a brother-in-law whom you knew by the name of Wm. Dickerson. I am satisfied you know him by being born within 8 or 10 miles of your town. I asked him where William moved to but he would not or could not tell me. My recollection is William was not exceeding 26 or 30 years old in 1828. I do not know whether he was married or single.

I heard Ben Hardin, who defended Watson, say that if old man Watson had told him the truth that they had killed the men he could have cleared them without difficulty, but the old man went to the gallows proclaiming his innocence of the murder. I was present at the hanging in 1828.

Very respectfully
Your Friend,

Col. Dave Murray.

A Lexington special to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat says: No Kentucky volunteer is more disappointed at not getting into the fight against the Spaniards than Lieut. Col. David R. Murray of the 4th Regiment which has just been sworn into the United States Service here. He is a half-brother to the famous William Crittenden, who was butchered by the Spaniards in 1851. The story of the heroic death of Crittenden has often been told and his heroic words, "A Kentuckian never turns his back to a foe and never kneels save to his God," have become a part of the country's literature. Col Murray wanted to become one of the first Americans to enter Havana and he says he would feel that the brutal death of his brother will have been avenged when that city capitulates to the Americans. In telling the story of the butchery of his brother and his fifty brave men the Colonel frequently stopped to brush away a tear and his hearers frequently found themselves in fullest sympathy with him. In speaking of the dear old mother who never taught her sons to keep alive the spirit of revenge, he said:

"I was a little boy when my brother was killed by the Spaniards, but I remember him as a large, handsome man with a kindly and a gentle voice. The last time he was home before his death he cut out his name on a beach tree near our house, and it remained there until a few years ago. Our mother never taught us that we should avenge our brother's death. It was a subject never mentioned in our home yet it seems that we have always lived in the belief that a day of reckoning would come. Yes, I would like to be the first to enter Havana, but not for the plaudits and praise of the country, but the sake of my dead brother. His remains are still buried there but now at last I hope we will find the place where he was rudely thrown into his treacherous grave."

It will be remembered that the massacre of Crittenden and his men came near precipitating a war with Spain at the time, and Col. Murray is not the only Kentuckian who is anxious to see the Spaniard humbled, for they not only remember the Maine, but they remember that other horror of half a century ago—the murder of the gifted Kentuckian, William Crittenden, and his fifty fearless followers.

Wounded at Santiago.

J. W. Creek, a United States Regular from Cuban fields arrived in Lebanon Saturday. He spoke freely of the battle of Santiago in which a Spanish ball passed through his left shoulder leaving a wound which will render him unfit for service for several months. His account of how our brave soldiers felt in death around him was thrilling beyond description. "Wes," as he is famiarly called is well known in court circles on account of serious troubles which he had several years ago, after which he joined the army. During his furlough he will remain with his parents at Liberty.—Lebanon Enterprise.

Spanish Justice.

The investigation of affairs at Santiago sheds a strong light upon the peculiar methods of Spanish justice. The conditions discovered were compared only to the Bastile. Men and women were herded together in a dingy, musty prison. Some, guilty of only a petty crime, such as speaking disrespectfully of the Spanish government, had been kept a year without a trial. Records of the charges against them had, in many cases, been lost; witnesses were dead, but the prisoners were detained though unsentenced. Even the jail officials were, in many cases ignorant of the charges against their prisoners. Prisoners forgotten by justice languished there for years.

Thomas Ingnando, a native of Havana, was arrested near the the end of 1882, charged with bigamy. He was never tried and is still in prison.

Jose Bastona, imprisoned on July 2, 1892, was not tried until the end of 1894.

Jose Silvera, arrested for petit theft, was sentenced for four years. On being removed from the dock he got into a struggle with a policeman, and was sentenced to an additional four years' sentence. On the day of his release he was unjustly sentenced again, so that he was sensenced to a total of fourteen years' imprisonment for a crime the maximum penalty for which was six months. He is still in jail.

The majority of the prisoners will be liberated by the American authorities. Some were found who have actually served more than the allotted penalties. In other cases habitual criminals were retained as soldiers or sent to Spain.

Tales of terrible cruelty, whipping, starving and torture were told by the prisoners who were seen by the American commission. Some of them were found to have been kept in jail long after their sentences had expired.

THURSDAY, AUG. 18, 1898.

NOW that the Spaniards have been driven out of Cuba, and have relinquished all claims to control of that island or is population, the question confronts the United States as to just what will be done about governing these people, about whom all this war has been waged. It has been clearly demonstrated that it will not do to allow the Cubans to take control of affairs for the present, as the Insurgents are clearly incapable of maintaining anything like a stable form of government. The administration at Washington has very wisely decided that the Cubans must recognize this for the present at least, and they need not expect any recognition of independence until they show at least that they are capable of maintaining a permanent government. The United States will, in the meantime, maintain a military form of government, and just how the Cubans are to be allowed to run their own country, is a qestion to be settled later.

ALL accounts of the fighting done in the war with Spain by the American forces, give the negro soldier great credit for bravery in action. A young man by the name of Riley, of Owensboro, Ky., who was with Col. Roosevelt's "Rough Riders," in speaking of the negro soldiers at the battle of Santiago, says that they displayed great heroism. He said: "I saw them being mowed down to the right and left of us. They pressed on like demons and fought till they reached the line of the enemy, when they slaughtered the Spaniards by the score. I heard the negroes of one company singing 'There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight' under fire. Any one knows that cowards could not do that."

LUCK seems to be with the First Kentucky Regiment so far as gratifying the desire of the members of it for a trip to Porto Rico is concerned. The transport Alamo, bearing the regiment, had left the harbor at Newport News only a short time before the peace orders were issued, and when a fast gunboat was sent out to overhaul her, the Fates decreed that the gunboat's shaft was to break, and the Kentucky boys were allowed to continue their excursion to Porto Rico.

OLD man Corbett, who was distinguished for being the father of Jim Corbett, the famous prize fighter, murdered his aged wife and then committed suicide at his home in San Francisco the other day. The incident will cause regret among a certain class of people in this country, inasmuch as it will probably interfere with that great event, the Corbett-McCoy fight advertised to take place on September 10.

ADMIRAL GEORGE DEWEY had the honor of delivering the first hard blow to Spain when he destroyed her squadron at Manila, and when he bombarded the city the other day and forced the Spaniards to raise the white flag, that was the last heavy blow of the war, which is now over.

GEN. FITZHUGH LEE who didn't do any of the fighting against the Spaniards, has announced that he will be a candidate for Unitel States Senator from Virginia after he is relieved from military duties.

Copper Colored Splotches.

There is only one cure for Contagious Blood Poison—the disease which has completely baffled the doctors. They are totally unable to cure it, and direct their efforts toward bottling the poison up in the blood and concealing it from view. S. S. S. cures the disease positively and permanently by forcing out every trace of the taint.

I was afflicted with a terrible blood disease, which was in spots at first, but afterwards spread all over my body. These soon broke out into sores, and it is easy to imagine the suffering I endured. Before I became convinced that the doctors could do no good, I had spent a hundred dollars, which was really thrown away. I then tried various patent medicines, but they did not reach the disease. When I had finished my first bottle of S. S. S. I was greatly improved and was delighted with the result. The large red splotches on my chest began to grow paler and smaller and before long disappeared entirely. I regained my lost weight, became stronger, and my appetite greatly improved. I was soon entirely well, and my skin as clear as a piece of glass.
—H. L. MYERS, 100 Mulberry St., Newark, N. J.

Don't destroy all possible chance of a cure by taking the doctor's treatment of mercury and potash. These minerals cause the hair to fall out, and will wreck the entire system.

S.S.S. For The Blood is PURELY VEGETABLE, and is the only blood remedy guaranteed to contain no potash, mercury, or other mineral.

Books on the disease and its treatment mailed free by Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Georgia.

ORDERS have been issued at Washington for the ordering out of 50,000 of the volunteers, and it is said that the Fourth Kentucky, or Col. Colson's regiment is included in the number whose service will not be needed.

To Consumptives

As an honest remedy Foley's Honey and Tar does not hold out false hopes in advanced stages, but truthfully claims to give comfort and relief in the very worst cases, and in the early stages to effect a cure. Haydon & Robertson.

THE LATE WAR.

The Spanish prisoners at Santiago are being embarked rapidly. Their condition is described as horrible, the mortality in the Spanish camp being so great that it is impossible to bury the dead. The bodies are piled together and burned.

The last skirmish in the war with Spain, so far as now known occurred Sunday morning on the road between Mayaguez and Lares, in Porto Rico, both sides being ignorant that peace had been declared.

The War Department has an abundance of supplies ready to be sent to Cuba if needed for the relief of the people there.

The Spanish coast cities and towns are rejoicing. They can now sleep without dreaming of Watson and his squadron, and they are preparing to start their ships once more for West Indian ports.

Gov. Gen. Augusti fled from Manila Friday and reached Hong Kong yesterday. He said at Hong Kong that Manila surrendered unconditionally to the Americans Saturday. When he left it was expected that the Americans would bombard the city the next day, and his report that it surrendered the day after he left indicates that he arranged for the surrender to take place.

Augusti with his family, was taken off by Germans in a launch to the German Cruiser Kaiserin Augusta, which carried him to Hong Kong. He is on his way to Spain.

You Can Depend On It

that Foley's Colic Cure is an instant relief for colic, summer complaint, cholera morbus diarrhoea, bloody flux, chronic diarrhoea cholera infantum, bilious colic painters colic and all bowel complaints. Haydon & Robertson.

PICKED UP.

Some of the swell hotels at Old Point have shut down on soldiers eating at their tables, largely owing, it is said, to the complaints of some officers in the volunteers who are suffering with swollen heads. The story is told of an officer of this class rushing up to the clerk of one of the big hotels and complaining that he had just discovered a common soldier eating in the dining room as he was about to partake of his dinner. He demanded that the offender be excluded. The clerk grew irate and started on an ejection journey with the officer. Arriving at the dining-room the soldier was pointed out. The clerk hesitated. "Why don't you put him out?" asked the officer. "Well, Lieutenant," said the clerk, "I don't think we can accommodate you this time. That soldier is the son of the president of the syndicate that owns this hotel and I'm not looking out for a chance to lose my job

In one of his speeches Private John Allin tells this story in a way that cannot be imitated: "An old darkey talking to another about the ups and downs and the hard life of negroes in general, attributed much of their lack of success to their inability to 'transfer.' 'It is this way,' explained the negro in his own dialect; 'When I want to rent a piece of land to raise cotton I apply to Mr. Planter, and he takes my note for the rent. Then Mr. Planter transfers my note to the merchant and gets money on it. The merchant transfers it to the commission merchant and gets money on it, The commission merchant transfers it to the bank and gets money on it. The bank transfers it to another bank and gets money on it. And so it goes. That note keeps going the rounds, and every time it is transferred somebody gets money on it, and nobody ever has anything to pay except me! That what's the matter with the negro—he doesn't know how to transfer!'"

The Most Fatal Disease.

It is not generally known that more adults die of kidney trouble than any other disease. When the first symptoms of this disease appear, no time should be lost in taking Foley's Kidney Cure which is guaranteed or money refunded. Haydon & Robertson.

Dangerous Drinking Water.

Death lurks in impure water. It breeds diseases often in epidemic form.

The first symptom is looseness of the bowels. These diseases are checked by taking Foley's Colic cure, Haydon & Robertson.

LIKE SPILT WINE.

When a woman who has been pretty realizes that she is so no longer she is apt to exaggerate her past charms. She is also apt to regard herself as singularly astute and honest, and to admire her own sweet reasonableness in confessing it.

Lucy Locke-James had been jilted, and not overgently jilted. Her feelings were not complex, and she did not analyze them; but she was sensitive, and she felt pain quite as acutely as do more superior persons. Her father, Admiral Locke-James, did not make things easier for her. He went about breathing fire and slaughter, and using nautical language against the man who had jilted her, so that the whole town of Bath was sorry for Lucy, and showed it. It is not surprising, therefore, that she lost her color, that her manner became shrinking, and her expression grew wan and sad.

Presently she stood up and let down her hair. She was a tall girl, and now much too thin for her height. She shook the soft waves round her face, and looked in the glass again, sighing. "My eyelashes and my hair are all that are left," she thought, sadly. Then she undressed and read one of the little white books on her dressing table, trying to believe that God must love her dearly, inasmuch as he had thought fit to chasten her so; and so to bed to lie wide-eyed and wakeful, thinking of that earthly love who had loved her so little.

"I am too worn out, too world-weary to give you a love worthy of your own, my Lucy," Clarence Webster would say, puckering up his forehead as he gazed into Lucy's eyes—his own were large and blue and prominent.

"The love you give me is enough for me; I ask nothing more or better of fate," was Lucy's invariable rejoinder. Then she would complacently tell herself that he idealized her, that she was in no way really fitted to be the mate of such a high-minded genius, but——. And so they were really happy, in a quiet-commonplace sort of a way, until Mrs. Van Schorer came to Bath.

Mrs. Van Schorer said she was English, but her appearance and her temperament belied her. She was small and decidedly plump, with that graceful, undulating walk that suggests more southern climes. Her eyes were dark and inscrutable, her hair heavy and straight and black. She wore it parted in the middle in Madonna bands and the result was quaint and uncommon. Her complexion was pale, her mouth big, and her teeth magnificent. She nearly always dressed in black. Women called her ugly and fat. Men, whom she interested, called her "une belleiaide, ronde et gracieuse."

"Clarence," said Mrs. Van Schorer, "why do you marry this ridiculous girl? Have you forgotten, Clarence?" Her voice was musical, with a pathetic little break in it; a touch of foreign accent gave a subtle distinction to her English.

Clarence Webster looked at the bewildering bundle of desire on the sofa; he crossed the room, and knelt down beside it; and for the time being the odor of patchouli quite overpowered the scent of lavender.

* * * *

One afternoon toward Christmas, just as it was growing dusk, and as he sat smoking by the studio fire and wondering why he had ever been born there was a knock at the outer door—a fluttering, uncertain sort of knock like that of a child.

He crossed the little passage to open; the gas on the staircase was not lit but in the semi-darkness he recognized the outline of the tall, girlish figure standing there.

"Lucy!" he cried, incredulously Lucy! You!"

The girl was trembling and could not speak; he led her in and put her in an armchair; then, she held out a letter to him, saying timidly:

"Will you read it and tell me if it is true?"

Clarence turned on the light and silently took the letter. Lucy leant back in her chair, grasping the arms to stay her trembling hands. He noticed how thin she was and pale, and for a minute everything was blurred by the tears that came into her eyes.

The letter, in a handwriting he knew well, bore an African postmark, and began abruptly thus:

"It has struck me lately that it is not fair that you should be punished for my fault. I noticed you that day in Bath, and you are the sort of girl who will take life hard. You probably love Clarence Webster; it has been a grief to you to lose him; there is no necessity. Such love as he is capable of you have had, and can have again if you wish it. What he felt for me was merely a passing passion, which does not in any way affect his feeling for you. You probably think it all terrible and shocking; you are only a girl probably a tender and foolish one, who knows nothing of life. If, when you get this, you still care for him, tell him what I have said, and try to believe that I bear you no sort of ill-will.

Victoria Van Schorer."

The letter fluttered from his hand and he went and knelt by Lucy.

"Can you forgive me, my dear, my dear?"

For answer Lucy put her arms about his neck "I have been so miserable!" she said.—Chapman Magazine.

Aspley—But McLerie is not so bad as they say; there is a better side of him.

Buttle—Indeed, what is it?

Patient—What must I do, doctor?"

"Attack the trouble at its source; make your father take sulphur baths at once."

A RED CROSS ANGEL.

CLARA BARTON'S EXPERIENCES WITH THE STARVING CUBANS.

America's Florence Nightingale Writes a Harrowing Story About the Awful Suffering She Witnessed in the War-Cursed Island—Work of the Red Cross Society.

From Havana to Santiago the wistful eyes of a half million sick, starving, dying Cubans are looking to the Red Cross to bring them succor from their terrible plight, Miss Barton's arrival has revived some who were at the last extremity, and all are trying to hold out a little longer until the help that is now promised reaches them.

Primarily, Miss Barton's mission is to rescue the helpless children and save the women who have no means of helping themselves. But her ministrations are denied to none who need them. For months before she started the veteran nurse chafed under her inactive life in Washington, and sought an opportunity to carry aid and comfort to the victims of war, famine and pestilence.

CLARA BARTON.

She had numerous conferences with the State Department on the subject, and the Government officials recognized the necessity for food, clothing and medical treatment on the war-cursed island.

Then a Central Relief Committee, consisting of Stephen E. Barton, nephew of Miss Clara Barton, and representing the Red Cross; Charles A. Schieren and Louis Klopsch of the Christian Herald, were appointed to act under the direction of the Department of State.

Appeals were at once sent out to the Governors of the different States, Mayors of cities and other officials for money and supplies to be distributed in Havana under the supervision of General Fitzhugh Lee.

The response, both on the part of individuals and organizations, was immediate and generous. Railroads and steamship lines co-operated with the contributors, and from all parts of the country provisions and articles of clothing were transported free of charge to New York, which became the central depot for supplies, although a few things were sent by way of Florida. Free transportation was also furnished from New York to Cuban ports by the steamship lines.

Miss Barton went to Havana to establish hospitals, and to carry relief to the sick and starving Cuban mothers and their children. She carried with her letters of introduction and commendation from the Department of State and from President McKinley to Consul General Lee, also a letter from the Spanish Minister at Washington, expressing the full approval of her mission by the Spanish Government.

The Christian Herald had already, at General Lee's request, sent 100 beds for children suffering from the effects of hunger and neglect, and had authorized the Consul General to hire twenty-five Robbed The Grave.

A startling incident of which Mr. John Oliver of Philadelphia was the subject is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken tongue coated pain continually in the back and sides no appetite gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised trying Electric Bitters, and to my great joy and surprise the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks and am now a well man. No one should fail to try them. Only 50c. per bottle at Haydon & Robertson's drug store.

Some Very Old Fish.

Methuselah would seem a mere boy to some fishes, and there are a great many kinds which would look upon human centenarians as infants. Carp are known to live to be 200 years old. In the Washington Aquarium there are small gold fish, placed there when Queen Victoria was crowned, and they have not yet grown to full goldfish size. A Russian pike was caught a few years ago with a gold band about its tail bearing the date 1546.

Mr. McClanahan represents the American Tobacco Company, and his business is to find out all about the tobacco crop. He has been systematically gathering information about the growing crop, and has figures as to the acreage, condition, amount of new land cultivated, etc. All of this information is a valuable guide as to the future market price for tobacco.

Ambrose Clements, a young colored boy, who lives in the Cecilville neighborhood, was tried by a jury in Judge Litsey's court yesterday on the charge of carrying concealed a deadly weapon. The accused was seen with a pistol in his pocket by several men one day in March last. He was indicted by the last grand jury. A bench warrant was issued for his arrest last week. Deputy Sheriff Sidney Osborne arrested him Saturday last and put him in jail. The jury gave him a fine of $25 and ten days in jail at 12 o'clock yesterday. At 1 o'clock he began doing time on the rock pile.

THE spring of mineral water recently discovered on the farm of Mrs. Annie G. Sharpe, below Valley Hill, is quite a resort for visitors on Sunday. On last Sunday afternoon it is estimated that between three and four hundred people from the neighborhood, and from Bardstown, Bloomfield and Springfield visited the spot and tried the water. The water has a very pleasant taste, and is said to be very healthful.

A Word From Chickamauga.

Charlie Greene has received a letter from Pat Whallen, a Washington county boy with Capt. Sweeney's company, Second Kentucky Regiment, now at Chickamauga. In speaking of some target practice the boys have been having, Pat says: "I am proud to say that we Washington county boys downed all of the others at accurate shooting. There are eight Washington county boys in this company. Capt. Sweeney offered as a prize for the best shot, a Winchester rifle. It was won by Proctor Shewmaker, of Mackville. Thos. Votaw, of the northern part of Washington, tied him 46 points out of 50, and in the shoot-off, Shewmaker won by one point. Gen. Breckinridge had a review of his whole division at Chickamauga Park on last Tuesday. I never in my life saw such a crowd at one time, and I don't suppose I ever will again. There were 50,000 citizens and soldiers on the grounds. We are going to take a seventy mile march next week, I think, into Tennessee."

Young Whallen says that there is talk of the Second Kentucky being ordered to Lexington, which the boys will like, as all chance of seeing actual war seems to have gone.

A Kansas Romance.

A Horton, (Kan.), old maid has quite a romance connected with her life. In her younger days she had a sweetheart, and he asked her to be his wife, but as she was too young to marry, she refused him. They separated and the years fled by, bringing with them much sorrow for the giddy miss. Ten years afterward, on the very day of the month on which she refused him, came a letter from the sweetheart of her childhood, asking again for her hand. She did not love him, but decided to never marry any one unless it be this man. She refused again, and every year since then she gets a letter on their anniversary, with the same old question written therein. The letters are not full of love. Oh, no, simply a question, that is all, a dozen words or more written in a business-like way, with his name signed below. Perhaps they will get married some day; but very likely not.

WHIMS OF ENGINES.

AN ENGINEER'S NARRATIVE SHOWING THEIR PECULIARITIES.

They Very Often Fall Into Queer Sulky and Balky Spells—The Antics of Some Famous Machines—Old "100" Killed the Engineer in a Fit of Rage.

"It sounds queer to say that locomotives have their likes and dislikes," said a veteran engineer, "but it actually does seem sometimes as if they had, and all old-time engineers believe it. I've seen locomotives when they acted as if they were human beings. They get the sulks and have balky streaks, and when they're in such moods you can't make time with them, do what you may. Then, again, they'll be as chipper and willing as a trotting horse, and you actually have to hold 'em in place to keep 'em from running into stopping-places ahead of time. There isn't an engineer of any experience at all who can't tell you of instances by the dozen of engines that positively would not make time with some engineers, but which would get there every time in charge of some other engineer. You might say that it was the fault of the engineer that such engines did not make their time, but I have known as good engineers as ever mounted a footboard who have been transferred from locomotives placed in their hands to run because the locomotives would not make their time, but which, under the hands of another engineer, neither as skilful nor as experienced, would never run behind.

"Take the case of Josh Martin and Gad Lyman, two of the early engineers on the Erie Railroad, and neither of them with a superior in his craft at that day. One time a new locomotive was turned out of a Paterson shop for the Erie, and Josh Martin wanted her the worst way. He ran on the Delaware division, from Port Jervis to Susquehanna. The superintendent, though, wanted the engine for the Eastern division, between Port Jervis and Piermont, and so he put her in charge of Gad Lyman. Gad ran her, or rather he tried to run her, but she had made up her mind about something, and she wouldn't make any kind of time for Gad. She would stall without provocation and acted contrary generally. Gad tried her for a week and then reported the locomotive 'No good,' and she was condemned to run the gravel train. She worked as balky and sulky as ever, though, and at last the superintendent ordered her to the scrap heap.

"Josh Martin heard of the fate the locomotive had been sentenced to, and he came down the road a-flying. He begged to have the engine, for he liked her, and said he was sure she would do all right with him. The superintendent yielded to Josh's appeal, and told him to take the locomotive and give her a trial. Josh did so. He mounted the cab at Piermont, and when he opened her up she went like a bird. She [illegible] Piermont, and [illegible] made the trip to Port Jervis quicker than any locomotive had ever made it before, and Josh Martin ran her for years on the Delaware division after that, and always on time as easy as could be. The locomotive was the old 71, and she is remembered yet by all the old engineers, and is well known to the younger ones by the tradition of the road.

"When Gad Lyman gave up that locomotive because she wouldn't work under him, he was put in charge of another new locomotive. This locomotive was a favorite of President Loder of the Erie. She behaved the best kind, and Gad was tickled all but to death with her. When the date came round for the opening of the railroad through to Dunkirk Gad and his locomotive were chosen for the distinction of pulling the first through train from the Hudson to Lake Erie. The occasion was to be a historic one, and Gad was proud. But what did that locomotive do but just get the sulks. I don't know why. Neither did Gad. She did, though, and acted up so outrageous that she was an hour behind schedule time when she jogged into Port Jervis with the train only seventy miles from the start. Gad Lyman was the worst feeling man, I'spose, that ever had a locomotive kick with him, and he felt worse when he was ordered to take his balky engine off and saw Josh Martin hook onto the train with old 71 locomotive that Gad had turned in as no good. Josh and old 71 yanked the train through with bells on.

And what do you think Gad Lyman's feelings must have been when he hooked onto another train to run back to Piermont to find the engine that had balked and sulked so outrageously with him on what ought to have been the greatest trip on record, just turn in and let herself out so cheerfully and lively on the way back that it was all Gad could do to hold her in! Now, how do you account for that? It is true, and a matter of record. Gad was so cut up by this conduct of the locomotive that he applied to have her exchanged for some other one, although she worked like a thoroughbred ever since the day she refused to pull the great pioneer through special. The company would not make the change that Gad wanted, and he refused to run that locomotive any longer and quit the road. This locomotive was the 100. When Gad gave her up she was placed in charge of Bill Lyman, Gad's brother. There wasn't a better engineer on the road than Bill, and he knew that make of locomotive particularly, for he had worked in the shops and helped make 'em. But what did this rantankerous locomotive 100 do? She sulked with Bill from the time he took her. Sometimes she'd spurt a little, but if she did she made up for it by lagging worse than ever. Bill worried along with her for nearly a year, but she wouldn't work under him at all. One day in the spring of 1852 she balked for certain at Chester station, just as she was pulling out with a train. Bill pounded her, for he was mad, but it seemed as if she actually shook her head like an ugly horse. Bill socked it right on to her, and suddenly she gave a spurt ahead exactly like the quick start of a balky horse. Then everything roared and shook around the place for a second or two. The vicious old 100 had exploded her boiler. She tore and riddled herself frightfully, but the horror of it all was that she had killed poor Bill Lyman and his fireman. Gad Lyman lived many years after that, but he always regretted his abandoning of that locomotive, for he said that if he had stayed by her there was no doubt that she would have ended her days usefully and in peace and the awful tragedy of her ending would not have been."

England Took Gibraltar.

Gibralter was taken by the English in 1704, during the war of the Spanish succession, a war which was provoked by the aggressive policy of France in endeavoring to place a monarch of the French family upon the Spanish throne, and thus consolidate the two kingdoms into one. The fortress was then captured, almost by surprise, though the Spaniards and French, appreciating the strategic value of the place, made desperate efforts to recover it, but were repulsed at every point. Between the date of its capture and 1779 repeated efforts were made by Spain to recover the fortress, and in the latter year the greatest armament that was ever brought to bear upon a besieged place lay before Gibraltar. The siege lasted, off and on, for many months. The investing force comprised 12,000 troops of France, over twice as many of the best infantry of Spain, and the fleet consisted of forty-seven ships, all three-deckers; ten great floating batteries, esteemed invincibles, carrying 212 guns; innumerable frigates, bomb-ketches, cutters, gun and mortar boats. For weeks together over 6,000 shells a day were thrown into the town and repeated attempts were made to storm the works, but the little garrison of only 7,000 men repelled every assault and finally succeeded in beating off the allied fleet. The blockade began June 21, 1779, and lasted until February, 1783, when the garrison was finally relieved by the arrival of a British fleet and army. Since that time the fortifications of Gibraltar have been so improved and increased that it is regarded as the strongest fortress in the world. The British government maintains there a garrison of from 5,000 to 10,000 men, with provisions for six months, and it is said the supply of military material is sufficient to enable the fortress to stand a siege of indefinite length.

Hard on Girls in Korea.

When a girl is born in Corea she is not even dignified by name. Several names are written on slips of paper and placed in an urn before some favorite deity, and when it is necessary her godfather selects one without seeing it and she is known by it until she reaches womanhood among the members of her own family; strangers designate her as the wife, mother, sister or daughter of such or such a man. This is not merely the result of custom. The laws are strict in this matter and hold a woman of little more consequence than a domestic animal.

In the higher classes of society the girls are separated from the boys of the family at the age of 7 years. They occupy the apartments of women and are forbidden to communicate with any one on the outside.

"Three from two you can't," says the schoolboy. Right! Three from two you can't, either in dollars or dividends or sarsaparilla. It takes the best sarsaparilla root to make the best sarsaparilla extract. The best sarsaparilla comes from Honduras, C. A., and the Dr. Ayer Co. practically controls the entire product. Yet others claim to be making "best" sarsaparilla. They must be making it out of the remainder left after subtracting three from two. But, "three from two you can't." You can't make the best sarsaparilla without best root. You only get the best when you

Santiago After Surrender.

There were Spanish soldiers selling their arms for good American money; there were priests in long robes smoking cigarettes; there were senoritas in fascinating mantillas; queer climbing streets without any pavements, dropping suddenly downhill, on primitive stepping stones with grass growing freely among them; curious old ruined fountains, clattering "Rosantes" looking well satisfied that they had nothing more serious to do than to look at the Americanos making free with their towns and and incidentally buying their machetes for ready cash. Spanish soldiers were cooking breakfast and filling the long street leading out to the trenches with confusion and bad smells; most of them were poor, miserable, hungry, dirty wretches who were too broken in spirit to even show their satisfaction at the entrance of the Americans.—William Bengough in Collier's Weekly.

Turning Them Out.

The Civil Service farce is playing out with cumulative rapidity scarcely a day passing which does not witness some instance of the law being ignored with impunity. A daring disregard for the regulation was the action of Collector Comingore, of Covington, who, in retaliation for the discharge of the Republican prison officials, fired twenty Democratic storekeepers and guagers without even the pretence of of a charge against them. Our own Mr. Sapp is a little smoother in his methods, but he is getting there with reasonable celerity, just the same. On the first of the month a number of Democratic revenuers were "laid off," instructed to take receipts for the government property turned over by them, which is a pretty good indication that they are to be retired into the shades of innocuous desuetude.—Marion Falcon.

Priceless Pain

"If a price can be placed on pain, 'Mother's Friend' is worth its weight in gold as an alleviator. My wife suffered more in ten minutes with either of her other two children than she did altogether with her last, having previously used four bottles of 'Mother's Friend.' It is a blessing to any one expecting to become a mother," says a customer.

Thus writes Henderson Dale, Druggist, of Carmi, Ill., to the Bradfield Regulator Company, of Atlanta, Ga., the proprietors and manufacturers of "Mother's Friend." This successful remedy is not one of the many internal medicines advertised to do unreasonable things, but a scientifically prepared liniment especially effective in adding strength and elasticity to those parts of woman's organism which bear the severest strains of childbirth.

The liniment may be used at any and all times during pregnancy up to the very hour of confinement. The earlier it is begun, and the longer used, the more perfect will be the result, but it has been used during the last month only with great benefit and success.

It not only shortens labor and lessens the pain attending it, but greatly diminishes the danger to life of both mother and child, and leaves the mother in a condition more favorable to speedy recovery.

"Mother's Friend" is sold by druggists at $1.00, or sent by express on receipt of price.

The American as a Fighter.

The undaunted bravery and heroism of the American soldier is nowhere surpassed and seldom approached. The war that is just now coming to a close has served to demonstrate this fact in a most emphatic way. His coolness when under fire, when bullets were clipping the leaves off bushes and trees like a steady hail, his impetuous bravery and aversion to halting at anything, his fortitude and good nature, all combine to make him the ideal soldier. The battle of Santiago and other tests, which showed acts of almost super-human endurance and courage have shed a lustre of admiration over the American soldier that future conquests of any kind cannot dim nor dispel. All honor to the American soldiers—the greatest military hero of the world.—Hartford Herald.

While the colored people were a little shy about volunteering to join the army, those who did go and participate in the fighting gave a good account of themselves. Representatives of other governments who went to Santiago to watch the American methods of warfare include the colored brother in the praise accorded the military spirit and courage of the American soldiers. In recognition of their gallantry at Santiago six colored sergeants were promoted to second lieutenants. — Harrodsburg Democrat.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

BEST SARSAPARILLA.

"Best" is an easy boast. But there's no best without a test. You expect something extra of best; something extra in bread from best flour; something extra in wear from best cloth; something extra in cures from best medicines. It's that something extra in Ayer's Sarsaparilla that makes Ayer's the best. That something extra is quality. Remember it's quality that cures, not quantity. Geo. Smith of the People's Drug Store, Seymour, Conn., says: "I have sold your goods for twenty-five years and when a customer asks me for

The Best Preparation for the Blood

I say: 'If you will take my opinion, use Ayer's Sarsaparilla; I will guarantee that you will receive more benefit by using one or two bottles of Ayer's than you would by using half a dozen bottles of some other kind.' When they take it, I never hear any complaint."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla cures all diseases that have their origin in impure blood: sores, ulcers, boils, eruptions, pimples, eczema, tetter, scrofula, etc. It cures cheaply, it cures quickly, and it cures to stay. That's why it's best.

"After twenty years' experience as a druggist, I consider Ayer's Sarsaparilla superior to any similar preparation on the market, and I give it the preference over all others."
A. C. WOODWARD, Worcester, Mass.

"In our estimation, as regards Sarsaparilla, Ayer's is the standard. We have never heard it spoken of in other than the very highest terms."
W. E. TERRILL & CO., Pharmacists, 9 State Street, Montpelier, Vt.

"I consider Ayer's Sarsaparilla the best blood purifier on the market."
DR. GRISE & CO., West Gardner, Mass.

"During fifteen years of experience with Ayer's Sarsaparilla, I have yet to learn of a single case wherein it failed to cure if used according to directions."
F. O. COLLINS, Druggist, Paris, Mo.

"I believe Ayer's Sarsaparilla contains more medicinal value than any other similar compound."

THE NEW WAY.

WOMEN used to think "female diseases" could only be treated after "local examinations" by physicians. Dread of such treatment kept thousands of modest women silent about their suffering. The introduction of Wine of Cardui has now demonstrated that nine-tenths of all the cases of menstrual disorders do not require a physician's attention at all. The simple, pure taken in the privacy of a woman's own home insures quick relief and speedy cure. Women need not hesitate now. Wine of Cardui requires no humiliating examinations for its adoption. It cures any disease that comes under the head of "female troubles"—disordered menses, falling of the womb, "whites," change of life. It makes woman beautiful by making them well. It keeps them young by keeping them healthy. $1.00 at the drug store.

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

W. I. ADDISON, M.D., Cary, Miss., says: "I use Wine of Cardui extensively in my practice and find it a most excellent preparation for female troubles."
